

During the late 19th century, Milan saw the emergence of its first "modern" pastry shops.

1896

The Birth of Pasticceria Tre Marie.

In Corso Vittorio Emanuele, Milan, Pasticceria Tre Marie was born. Renowned for its quality and elegant hospitality, its specialty was the Panettone.

A Year of Beginnings and Connections

1946

Sammontana gelato

In Empoli, Sammontana's journey began when Romeo Bagnoli, father of six, purchased the Sammontana dairy, named after the farm supplying its milk. His eldest son, Renzo, transformed the dairy into a bar and gelateria, marking the start of Sammontana Gelato production.

1955

The Invention of the Barattolino

To distribute gelato beyond Empoli, Renzo and his brother Sergio invented the first 6-litre tin can for sale in cafés.

Three stories began in 1946, brought together in the present day.

Bindi Dessert

La Donatella

Founded as an artisanal pastry workshop, La Donatella evolved while staying true to its roots—crafting excellence with meticulous care, driven by love and passion.

The story began with Attilio Bindi, a Tuscan restaurateur who moved to Milan with his family. In 1946, he and his sons, Romano and Rino, opened a small pastry shop on Via Larga, introducing a new vision for desserts.

MAESTRI DEL DESSERT®

The Birth of Gelpat

1976

An unwavering dedication to taste, texture, and presentation.

Based in Saint-Auvent, Gelpat has been crafting premium choux-based pastries since 1976, with every production step infused with artisanal care.

1985

The Birth of Il Pasticcere

1988

Sammontana expanded into frozen pastry, innovating with pre-leavened, ready-to-bake products that preserved the traditional essence of "pasta madre" (mother dough).

The Birth of Forno d'Asolo

In the hills of Asolo, brothers Fabio and Paolo Gallina envisioned bringing freshly baked frozen croissants to all of Italy. Thanks to daily baking, their creations retained the fragrance and freshness of just-baked pastries.

The Sammontana Group and FdA unite marking the beginning of a new chapter, an alliance built on shared values, a commitment to quality, and a bold vision for the future.

2024

SAMMONTANA ITALIA